Elegy for the Dying Township by Su Tong

03

A brand-new novel by Mao Dun Literature Prize winner Su Tong
A magical pond, a missing boy, and an absurd fable under the colorful sky

About the author:

Su Tong was born in Suzhou, Jiangsu Province, and graduated from the Chinese Department of Beijing Normal University, where he now serves as a professor. Since his literary debut in 1983, he has been a leading voice in China's avant-garde literature.

Su Tong's works—such as Wives and Concubines have been translated into more than 30 languages and adapted into acclaimed films and stage productions, including Raise the Red Lantern and Empress Wu Zetian.

A recipient of numerous literary honors, including the Mao Dun Literature Prize (The Yellow Sparrow), and the Man Asian Literary Prize (The Riverbank), Su Tong is renowned for his "gentle rebellion and elegant imagination." His writing often draws on adolescent perspectives and absurdist narratives to construct metaphor-rich literary worlds.

About the book:

Elegy for the Dying Township is Su Tong's first novel in over a decade, and a powerful return from the acclaimed author of The Yellow Sparrow, winner of the Mao Dun Literature Prize.

Spanning the 1970s to the 1990s—a period of sweeping change in China—Elegy for the Dying Township tells a poignant story of two families living on opposite sides of the "Saltwater Pond," one rural, one urban. Through the eyes of teenager Deng Chaoyang, the novel traces decades of simmering feuds, generational trauma, and quiet reconciliations between the Pu and Huang families, whose fates are bound by both history and geography.

From the impact of cremation reforms to the closure of state-owned factories, Su Tong offers a vivid portrait of ordinary people navigating extraordinary times. Written in his signature surreal and lyrical prose, Elegy for the Dying Township is at once a family epic and a requiem for China's disappearing suburbs—an unforgettable exploration of memory, identity, and the quiet endurance of the human spirit.

About the book:

Hope and Life is the result of eight years of work by Hu Xuewen, and is considered a panoramic history of life in centuries-old China. It is a story that begins with the beginning of life. Hu Xuewen's brush reaches into the rituals, morals, bloodlines and localities of vernacular society, and through the flesh and blood of his characters, he gives shape to the unnamed "Yuan Qi" at the bottom of national life in a grand picture, and sets the heart of a centuries-old China that has survived and prospered through all the hardships, demonstrating the author's extraordinary narrative talent.

Unbreakable Words by Zhang Xinke

About the author:

Zhang Xinke, Ph.D. in literature from Germany, is a renowned Chinese writer widely regarded as a leading figure in contemporary Chinese literature focusing on major revolutionary and espionage themes. He has served as the president of two universities and is currently the Party Secretary of the Jiangsu Federation of Social Sciences. Zhang has published over eight million words of literary works in prominent journals such as Contemporary, October, and Zhongshan. His representative works include Letters from the Far East, Vast Land, Fallen Wings, and Chronicles of Mountains and Rivers. He has received numerous prestigious awards, including the Annual Grand Prize from Selected Fiction and the Zijinshan Literature Award of Jiangsu Province. Many of his works have been adapted into TV dramas, stage plays, and operas.

About the book:

On April 29, 1932, at Hongkou Park in Shanghai, the Japanese authorities held a grand "Victory Celebration of the Battle of Shanghai." Suddenly, a violent explosion tore through the gathering — the clash of shrapnel and flesh shattered the invaders' revelry. In the wake of the incident, the Japanese military established the so-called "Tiger Hunt Squad" to track down Kim Fan (Kim Gu), a key leader of the Korean Provisional Government in exile in China, who was believed to have masterminded the attack. The manhunt swept across more than a dozen cities and lasted an astonishing thirteen years.

Across rugged terrain and war-torn rivers and mountains, it was a symphony of life and death. From without came the Japanese agents' bloody pursuit; from within arose betrayals — collaborators who knelt before the enemy, opportunists who crept in through every crack. Time and again, Kim Fan stood at the edge of death — and everytime he escaped. Protecting him were countless ordinary Chinese citizens, who risked everything without hesitation.

Pursuit and flight, betrayal and loyalty, violence and counterstrikes, despair and redemption — renowned spy novelist Zhang Xinke spent eight years tracing historical sites across China and Korea, piecing together fragments of a forgotten past scattered in the crevices of time. His work reconstructs this extraordinary chapter in which the peoples of China and Korea united in spirit and struggle against foreign aggression, bearing witness to the profound bond forged between two ancient civilizations in the crucible of war.
